Writing as a Process

Writing is a teachable skill, like carpentry or painting or playing the guitar. The big difference is that you can have a wonderful life without ever becoming a carpenter or painter or musician, but effective writing is an indispensable skill that will help you along in whatever role you create for yourself. Rumor has it that good writing is the product of inspiration, but this is for the most part a fallacy. Good writing is not really even a product at all; it is a process. And, as Linda Flower says in Problem Solving Strategies for Writing, "if a writer's method relies on waiting for inspiration, she may have a long and uninterrupted wait"(17).

The process theory of writing also does away with the old notion of "first you think it up, then you write it down." What happens more often than not is that you write your way toward what you believe: you discover new ideas as you write. Writing becomes a thinking process that improves with practice. That is why we will be keeping journals. The journal writing technique is a way of practicing the necessary skills in way that adds up to many many pages, without demanding eight or ten papers from you. It also gives you a no-pressure environment in which to warm up your skills.

English 1002

The prerequisite for this course is the successful completion of English 1001 C or its equivalent. No student may take 1002 C without having satisfied this prerequisite. This is because in our work here we will be applying the skills studied in 1001 C to the specific purpose of writing about three major genres of literature: short fiction, drama, and poetry.

Real life writing situations, situations in which you may be applying for a job, a promotion, a grant, etc., always have a specific purpose and audience. General writing skills and talents remain as pure potential unless they can be harnessed for a purpose and fitted to the needs of a specific audience. As we write about literature, we are really practicing the survival skill of adapting to the demands of the environment.

Grades:

Your grade will be determined by your performance on the following tasks:

- 12.5% -- A 3 to 5 page paper on short fiction, due February 16.
- 12.5% -- A Mid-term Examination on March 6.
- 12.5% -- A 3 to 5 page comparison paper, due March 27.
- 12.5% -- Your journal, collected March 29.
- 12.5% -- An oral presentation of Poetry, between April 3 and April 19.
- 25.0% -- A 5 to 7 page research paper, due April 26.
- 12.5% -- A Final Examination, during finals week, date to be announced.

This may be one of the hardest classes you will take at the university, and it certainly will be one of the most important because, in a way, you are simultaneously attending all of your university classes that will follow. I am available by appointment at your convenience if I can help, and I have included my home phone number. Also, there is an excellent -- and free -- service available to you at the Writing Center, Coleman Hall 301. You will walk out of the door with a better paper every single time.

If an assignment is late, it will be docked one letter grade for each day it is late. Papers that have still not been submitted two weeks after the due date will be regarded as "missing" and will receive a -2. They may not be made up. (See "Grading," below.)

Grading:

I will use the following values in averaging your grades:

A+ = 4.2	B+ = 3.2	C+ = 2.2	D+ = 1.2	F = 0.0
A = 4.0	B = 3.0	C = 2.0	D = 1.0	Missing = -2.0
A - = 3.8	B - = 2.8	C - = 1.8	D - = 0.8

I will use the following cutoff points in determining final grades:

A = 4.2 to 3.8	B = 3.7 to 2.8	C = 2.7 to 1.8
	N/C = 1.7 and below

This is an A, B, C, or no-credit class, so you can't get a D or an F, but if you get a N/C you will have to take it again. Invest your talents and time in this class and you will never regret it.

Journals:

Requiring you to keep a journal is a blessing in disguise. It is a place for you to help satisfy departmental requirements for the quantity of writing you produce, free from some of the limitations associated with producing a polished rhetorical artifact. Journal entries can record your impressions of the works you read and serve as practice fields for the essays you subsequently generate.

These "reaction entries" to the pieces we read--the journal entries specified in the syllabus--should consist of at least one hundred and fifty words. In addition, there will be entries from some of our group work and other in-class projects; we may even do some coloring! Please bring your journal to class every day. The journals will be collected several unannounced times during the semester, and their evaluation will constitute a significant portion of your grade.

As you react to the readings, concentrate on trying to identify one or more key questions about the work; perhaps even offer the beginnings of an answer. Do not bother with recapping the plot.

Information for Students with Disabilities:

If you have a documented disability and wish to receive academic accommodations, please contact the Coordinator of Disability Services (581-6583) as soon as possible.

Plagiarism Policy

I am required to say this about the English Department's policy concerning plagiarism:

"Any teacher who discovers an act of plagiarism -- 'The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and / or thoughts of another author, and representation of them as one's original work' (Random House Dictionary of the English Language) -- has the right and the responsibility to impose upon the guilty student an appropriate penalty, up to and including assignment of a grade of F for the assigned essay, and a grade of N/C for the course, and to report the incident to the Judicial Affairs office.

This is pretty strong language for a pretty serious offense; it occurs, and has resulted, in some cases, in expulsion from the university. We're learning a survival skill here, and a cheater is only cheating himself.
